Durood Stories

♦ 1. Allama Iqbal's One Crore Durood ♦

Dr. Muhammad Iqbal — the poet-philosopher who helped inspire the creation of Pakistan — had a deep, personal connection with durood. The story begins when he visited a friend who worked at the airport. He found his friend sitting with a tasbeeh, murmuring something. "What are you reading?" Iqbal asked. The friend said: "Durood Sharif. Since I began reading it in large numbers, my life has changed."

The friend then shared his experience. When he completed one lakh durood, he saw a dream: he was standing before a filthy drain filled with dirty water and garbage. He had to cross it. He waded through, struggling, until he reached the other side — where the ground became clean and pure. Then he saw the Prophet ﷺ sitting in a blessed gathering. The Prophet looked at him and smiled. The friend felt overwhelming peace. But then the Prophet said something that shook him: "You will die in three days." He woke up terrified. Three days later, he passed away — exactly as the Prophet had said.

Iqbal was deeply moved. That day, he made a firm intention: "O Iqbal, from now on, durood will be your morning and evening wazifa. You will spend your life reading durood." He began reading 10,000 Durood-e-Khizri daily. He kept reading and reading — until one day, he completed one crore durood. And not only that, he saw the Prophet ﷺ in a dream.

Later, when a doctor friend asked him: "Iqbal, how did you become Hakim-ul-Ummat? How did you achieve this rank?" Iqbal replied simply: "The secret is that I read one crore durood in my life. You should read too — perhaps Allah will grant you a rank as well."

♦ 2. Sultan Mahmood Ghaznavi: One Lakh Daily ♦

Sultan Mahmood Ghaznavi — the legendary ruler — was not just a just king but a true lover of the Prophet ﷺ. He read one lakh durood every single day. The speaker describes how when you read with sincerity, Allah makes the wazifa easy for you and blesses your time. He mentions meeting a baba who reads 5,000 daily — by 2 PM his counter already showed 22,000. He starts after Tahajjud and reads until he sleeps.

But Sultan Mahmood's daily lakh eventually created a problem. He became so absorbed in durood that state affairs suffered. One night, the Prophet ﷺ appeared in his dream and said: "You are reading too much durood. Reduce it." The Sultan was shocked — how could the Prophet ask him to read less? But the Prophet ﷺ told him to reduce to 313 daily. Sultan Mahmood obeyed. He reduced his daily count to 313 — and from that day, his affairs returned to normal, and his kingdom flourished.

The speaker uses this story to explain that there is a balance. Not everyone is meant to read a lakh daily. What matters is consistency, sincerity, and intention. Even 1,000 daily, done with love, can transform your life. He says: "When you worship with ikhlas for Allah's pleasure, Allah blesses your capacity. He makes the difficult easy."

♦ 3. From Poverty to Wealth: A Man's Durood Journey ♦

A man shares his story: "There was a time when I was destitute — I needed every penny. People avoided me. Even my own relatives turned their faces. They didn't want to associate with me. I lived in poverty for six years."

Then he discovered durood. But it wasn't just reading — it was how he read. He describes his method: "After Isha prayer, I face Madinah Sharif, sit on my knees, close my eyes, and visualize myself standing before the Prophet's ﷺ blessed court, before the golden grille. In that state of concentration, adab, and love, I read durood."

Since he began reading this way, his life transformed completely. His poverty vanished. The same relatives who had shunned him now greeted him warmly. His business flourished. His rizq increased enormously. He says: "I was nobody. durood made me somebody."

The speaker emphasizes that this is the power of durood read with presence of heart — not mechanically, but with the feeling that you are actually standing in the Prophet's ﷺ court. When you read with that love, the Prophet ﷺ remembers you, and Allah opens every door.

♦ 4. The Sinful Man Whose Hand the Prophet Held ♦

Allama Abdul Wahid shares a dream he had. His neighbour was a notorious sinner — openly disobedient to Allah, with no regard for ibadah. One night, Allama Abdul Wahid saw the Prophet ﷺ in his dream — and the Prophet was holding this sinful neighbour's hand.

Shocked, he asked: "Ya Rasool Allah! This man is a great sinner! Why are you holding his hand?"

The Prophet ﷺ replied: "Yes, he is a sinner. But every night before sleeping, he reads one thousand durood upon my blessed body. I am taking him to present him before Allah — and I will intercede for him."

When Allama Abdul Wahid woke and went to the mosque, the same sinful neighbour came to him, weeping. He said: "I saw the Prophet ﷺ in my dream."

He was holding my hand and taking me to Allah for his intercession. And then he told me: 'Go to Abdul Wahid in the morning and take repentance at his hands.'"

The lesson: even a deeply sinful person who reads durood with regularity earns the Prophet's ﷺ special attention. Durood does not require perfection — it requires consistency. And through it, even the most fallen can find their way back.

♦ 5. Her Husband Was Murdered — She Was Blamed ♦

A woman sends her story: "I've been reading durood for 15 years. Ten years ago, my husband's friends murdered him brutally. After the murder, my in-laws blamed me — they said I was involved, that the murder happened because of me. They had me thrown in jail."

She was left with two small children. Her father had already passed away. Her only support was an elderly, widowed mother. There was no one to argue her case, no money to pay a lawyer. "I was devastated. I wept until I was destroyed. Then I made this intention: I will read one lakh twenty-five thousand durood, with the intention that Allah proves my innocence, that He frees me, that He removes this difficulty."

She began reading with tears, begging Allah for forgiveness, with complete trust that durood would save her. The 奇迹 came fast — after reading only 6,000 times, her innocence was proven and she was released from jail with honour. She then completed the remaining durood at home.

But the struggle wasn't over. Her husband had left no savings. She had no means to work — she suffered from asthma and couldn't do physical labour. So she turned to the same wazifa that had freed her: "I prayed all five prayers on time, and alongside them, I read durood with full concentration."

For ten years, Allah provided from places she could never have imagined. Every need was met, every difficulty eased. "I was amazed — whenever I needed money, Allah would arrange it from somewhere unexpected." Now her son has grown up, has a job, and she lives a happy, peaceful life. She adds: "I was also blessed with the vision of the Prophet ﷺ."

♦ 6. Seven Siblings, All Saw the Prophet ﷺ ♦

A man who has been on the durood journey for years, and who has placed durood posters in mosques across the area, sends his extraordinary news: all seven of his siblings — four brothers and three sisters — have been blessed with the vision of the Prophet ﷺ in their dreams. Not just once, but multiple times. They have also seen several Prophets and righteous predecessors.

But then he shares a startling contrast. "Our father, in his youth, did great worship. He did extensive zikr and ibadah with great discipline. But our father never saw the Prophet ﷺ in his dream. Why? Because he did not know the virtue of durood sharif. He did not know how powerful it is."

The father worshipped much, but without durood, the vision did not come. The moment his children learned about durood and began reading it abundantly, all seven of them received the blessed dream — over and over again. The message is clear: durood is the key that unlocks what worship alone cannot open.

♦ 7. The Woman Whose Coffin Wouldn't Lift ♦

A very poor woman — she worked cleaning people's homes and sweeping school floors — had one great love: durood sharif. From her meagre monthly salary, she always set aside a portion for the service of durood. She was regular and disciplined in arranging durood gatherings in her home, inviting women to sit and read together.

When she passed away and her funeral was being lifted, something shocking happened — the coffin suddenly dropped and became impossible to lift. People were stunned. "This was a servant of durood! A righteous woman! What has happened?"

Among the women sitting in the gathering, an elderly, pious woman fell into a state — and saw the deceased woman standing before her, wrapped in her kafan. The elderly woman spoke to her: "I thought you were righteous! You read durood, you served it — what is this?"

The deceased replied: "I had a flaw. I did not pay my workers properly. I owe people money." The elderly woman told her to seek Allah's forgiveness and read durood. She did — and then the coffin became light. The funeral proceeded.

The lesson: durood is powerful, but it must be read with a clean heart, with ikhlas, and with justice in how we deal with others.

♦ 8. The Man Who Left Everything for the Prophet's Court ♦

Sheikh Mohammad Aslam, an Islamic scholar who runs a popular Facebook page, shares a story he witnessed personally in Madinah. He saw a man at the Rawdah Shareef of Masjid-e-Nabawi who was always present — standing before the blessed grille, offering abundantly durood. "I had never seen someone so completely devoted," the Sheikh says. "His only occupation was being in the Prophet's court."

When the Sheikh asked him about himself, the man replied: "I left Pakistan years ago. I shut down my business, sold everything, left my home and family — all so that I could be here. My only purpose is to remain in the court of my Master, offering durood."

Then he shared what happened when he received an emergency call from Pakistan requiring his immediate return. The problem: he had no money. No ticket, no savings — he had given everything up. "I went to the Prophet's court at the Rawdah and said: 'Ya Rasool Allah, I am in trouble. I need to go home but I have no money. Please help.' I made dua, I presented the wasila."

A few hours later, while sitting in Masjid-e-Nabawi, a stranger tapped his shoulder and said: "Do you need to go to Pakistan?" The man was shocked — he had told no one. The stranger arranged his ticket, gave him money, and said: "The Prophet ﷺ came to me in a dream and told me: 'There is a Pakistani man sitting at such-and-such place. He needs to go to Pakistan. Go, arrange his ticket.' I have come on the Prophet's command."

♦ 9. Twenty Durood Freed a Soul from the Grave ♦

A mother's son was deeply sinful. He lived in disobedience, refused to repent, and eventually died without ever turning to Allah. The mother was devastated — not just by the loss, but by the fear of what awaited him.

Some time later, she dreamed of her son. He was in the punishment of the grave — suffering, trapped. She was heartbroken. But then she dreamed of him again — and this time, he was happy, at peace, free.

She asked: "You were in azab-e-qabr! Now you are smiling. What happened?"

He explained: "One day, a young man passed by our graveyard. He was also a sinner. But when he saw the desolation of the graves, his heart was struck. He wept over his own sins. He made sincere tawbah to Allah. Then he read a little Quran, and read only twenty durood — and dedicated the sawab to all the people of our graveyard. And because of those twenty durood, Allah removed my punishment."

SubhanAllah. Twenty durood — read with sincerity by a stranger passing a graveyard — were enough to save a soul from the torment of the grave. The speaker reflects: durood is not about quantity. Even a little, read with ikhlas, can become a means of salvation — for the living and the dead.

♦ 10. Shajra Qadria: Lost Money and Lost Ring ♦

The speaker shares personal experiences from reading Shajra Qadria — the spiritual chain connecting murids to the Prophet ﷺ.

First story: In Makkah, a woman from Faisalabad had money stolen from her bag. She checked the bag three times — nothing. She was crying, distraught. The speaker told her: "Don't worry. I'll read something, and Allah will help." He began reading the Shajra Sharif three times, presenting the wasila of the blessed personalities in the chain. Then he told her: "Check your bag once more." She said: "I've already checked three times!" He insisted. She opened the bag — and the money was there. She was stunned. The same bag, checked three times by her, now contained the money. She broke down in gratitude.

Second story: At his home, a family ring went missing. Everyone searched — the whole family looked everywhere. Nothing. The speaker began reading the Shajra Sharif. Within two minutes of completing the reading, he walked to an almirah (cupboard) in the drawing room — and there it was, sitting in plain sight. The entire family had searched that room, but the ring appeared only after the Shajra was read.

He says: "People go to fake amils who give them wazaif that have no connection to a silsila. But when you read the Shajra Sharif — which connects you directly to the Prophet ﷺ through your shaykh — miracles happen. The barakah flows through the chain."

♦ 11. The Orphan Who Found Durood ♦

A pious elder narrates his life story. He was five or six years old when his mother passed away. They lived in a rural area of India. After his mother's death, his father remarried. The stepmother subjected the children to severe cruelty — making them do all household work, restricting their food, and even making them wash filthy clothes while she sat idle. Their father, afraid of his new wife, offered no protection. The children lived in misery, praying each day that their stepmother would never return when she visited her parents' home — those were the only days their father showed them love.

One day, after the stepmother beat his younger sister severely, he complained to his father. In retaliation, she beat all the siblings brutally. Heartbroken, he ran away from home at the age of nine or ten. He boarded a train and traveled for hours before getting off at an unknown station. With only a few rupees, he spent his days wandering and his nights at the railway station. When his money ran out, he survived on leftovers that travelers threw away.

One day, extremely hungry, he picked up food from the ground. An elderly woman saw him, called him over, and fed him. She asked about his situation and, upon hearing his story, took him home. She bathed him, fed him, and gave him clean clothes. She asked him to read durood, but he didn't know what durood was. She taught him: "Read Sallallahu Ala Muhammad." He began reading it with her daily, and she taught him other prayers as well.

After some time, she told him it was time for him to leave and find his way in the world. She gave him blessings and sent him off. With the durood he had learned, he set out. In just a few days, he found work at a shop. The shopkeeper was amazed — he had never seen such a young boy work so well. He gave him food, shelter, and eventually sent him to school. The boy studied hard and grew up to become a respected, God-fearing man with a good job and family.

Years later, he went back to find the elderly woman who had saved him, but she was nowhere to be found. The neighbors told him no such woman lived there. He realized she was no ordinary person — she was a blessing sent by Allah through the medium of durood.

♦ 12. Astaghfar Broke the Curse of Joblessness ♦

A woman shares her story of how Astaghfar transformed her family's life. Her husband had been unable to hold down a job for five years. Whatever work he tried, it never lasted. She was 45 years old, her younger sister was still studying, and she herself was unemployed. The only earner was one brother with a limited salary. The family struggled to survive.

During this difficult time, she came across videos on YouTube about the blessings of Astaghfar and Durood. She learned that Allah says in the Quran: "Seek forgiveness, and I will send rain from the sky and give you abundance." Inspired, she made a firm intention and began reciting Astaghfar 7,000 times daily, along with Durood, asking Allah to resolve all her problems.

One day, while sitting and reciting, a thought came to her mind: she should try her previous employer again, even though their policy was to never rehire former employees who had resigned. She knew the policy, but with faith in Allah's power, she went anyway. The owner told her there was no vacancy, and if anything came up, they would let her know.

She returned home and continued her Astaghfar with even more sincerity. A few days later, the owner called her back and offered her a job — something that had never happened in the company's history. She got the job, and her life changed completely. Her husband also found stable work, and the family's financial situation improved dramatically. She credits the power of Astaghfar for breaking what felt like a curse on her family.

♦ 13. Cancer Cured by 15,000 Durood Daily ♦

A man working in Dubai fell seriously ill. When his condition worsened, he went to the doctor, who prescribed tests. He went home weeping, knowing his father had sent him to Dubai with borrowed money to improve the family's circumstances. If he fell seriously ill, everything would collapse.

After two days of crying, he went for his test results — and the worst fear was confirmed: he had cancer. Devastated, he spent entire nights crying and reading Durood Sharif. He would read up to 15,000 durood in a single day, weeping and begging Allah: "O Allah, cure me through the blessed path of Your beloved Prophet Muhammad (PBUH)."

A few days later, the doctor told him his cancer had reached the last stage and he should return to Pakistan to be with his family. Heartbroken, he went back. When he told his family, the entire household was shattered — his wife fainted from grief.

Back in Pakistan, he had tests done at multiple laboratories. All confirmed cancer. But he did not lose hope. He continued reading durood with unwavering faith. After some time, he went for another checkup — and the doctors were stunned. The cancer was completely gone. Completely healed. He attributes his recovery entirely to the blessings of Durood Sharif and the mercy of Allah.

♦ 14. 7,000 Astaghfar Opened the Doors of Marriage ♦

A sister shares how Astaghfar and Durood changed her life. She had been facing a persistent obstacle in getting her marriage fixed. Some people said it was a spiritual blockage, others said it was the evil eye. Whatever the cause, her rishta kept failing. She had no job and was deeply troubled.

While browsing YouTube, she came across a video saying that if someone recites Astaghfar 7,000 times daily — with 11 durood e ibrahimi at the beginning and end — their duas would be accepted and their needs fulfilled. The idea touched her heart, and she made the intention to do it.

On the first day, she started reciting but could only manage 2,500 instead of 7,000 before falling asleep. She felt she hadn't completed her goal. But Allah knows the sincerity of intentions. The next morning, she received two pieces of incredible news — blessings she had been waiting for. Despite reading only a fraction of what she intended, the barakah of her sincere intention and the little she did read was enough for Allah to open doors she thought were closed forever.

She learned that what matters is not the quantity but the sincerity and love with which one reads. Even a small amount, read with khushu and devotion, carries more weight than a large amount read without heart. Her story is a reminder that Allah responds to intention, and Durood and Astaghfar together are among the most powerful means of having duas accepted.

♦ 15. Durood e Ibrahim Succeeded Where Everything Else Failed ♦

A man who had exhausted every option for his problem came to a pious elder. He had tried every treatment, every medicine, every wazifa — nothing worked. He told the elder: "I haven't come to you for a wazifa. I've only come so you can make dua for me, because I've heard your duas are accepted."

The elder smiled and said: "I won't give you any wazifa. Just do one thing — read only Durood e Ibrahim. Read it with understanding, read it as much as you can, whenever it comes to mind. Continue this with sincerity and dedication."

The man began reading Durood e Ibrahim throughout the day. His family members also started reading it. Soon, the impossible happened — his problem was solved. The matter that had been stuck for so long, the issue that no doctor or wazifa could fix, was resolved through the sheer barakah of Durood e Ibrahim.

The elder explains that Durood e Ibrahim holds a unique status among all durood. Its blessings extend from below the oceans to above the seven heavens. When a person reads it with sincerity, angels and jinn both befriend him. They attend his gatherings, help him, and become his companions. The one who understands this secret has truly found treasure — for Durood e Ibrahim is not just an act of worship, but a direct connection to the court of the Prophet (PBUH), and through him, to Allah Himself.

♦ 16. Durood e Ibrahim Brought Miracles at Every Step ♦

A man shares that for eleven years, the doors of mushahidat (spiritual witnessing) have been open in his life through Durood e Ibrahim, with blessings appearing at every step. He recounts his early confusion — he had heard from many people which durood to read and which to avoid, leaving him lost. But his heart kept telling him that Durood e Ibrahim was the one for him, especially since its translation is itself a dua for the descent of mercies and blessings upon the Prophet (PBUH). He committed to it with conviction and sabit qadami (steadfastness), and found that every problem, every illness, every difficulty began resolving through it.

He shares several miracles. A man named Asim lost a valuable gold chain at the Masjid-e-Nabawi. He searched everywhere — nothing. Then someone reminded him to say "Ya Ghaus-e-Azam Dastgir" and read durood. He did, and shortly after, someone called from the mosque's lost-and-found — the chain had been found. In another instance, a man searched for his lost donkey for three days in vain. He was told to read Durood e Ibrahim 100 times. He did, and by that very evening the donkey returned on its own. A student lost his roll number slip before an exam — after reading Durood e Ibrahim, he found it in a place he had already searched twice.

The speaker emphasizes that when you place complete yaqeen (conviction) on any act of worship, it never lets you down. Even people who place yaqeen on wrong things sometimes see results — so how much more powerful is yaqeen placed on the sunnah of the Prophet (PBUH)? Durood e Ibrahim, he says, contains an entire world of ease and solutions within it.

♦ 17. A Boy Completed 1 Crore Durood by Age 20 ♦

A young man shares his extraordinary journey of completing one crore (ten million) durood sharif by the age of twenty — and then immediately starting another crore, having already reached four lakh in the new count.

Before durood, his life was entirely consumed by sin. He had no concept of prayer — neither he nor his family observed namaz. His days and nights revolved around watching movies, listening to songs, and chatting with girls on social media. He describes himself as completely lost in haram, with no inclination toward goodness. This continued through the ninth grade — no prayers, no deen, just the same routine of sin.

Then one day, through social media, he began talking to a girl who was deeply religious. Despite being in a haram friendship, she always guided him toward deen. Every conversation she steered toward Allah, His Prophet (PBUH), and the importance of prayer. Slowly, something shifted. He began reading durood sharif. At first it was just a few, but as he continued, his heart became attached. The transformation was total — he left behind films, songs, haram friendships, and embraced prayer and the deen fully.

The durood became his life. He set a target of one crore and completed it — a feat that in this age of widespread sin, where youth spend their time in entertainment and education only, is nothing short of a great shahadat (testimony). His story is a living proof that durood has the power to completely transform a person, no matter how deep in sin they may be.

♦ 18. He Recited One Dua and Allah Gave Him Everything ♦

A sister narrates a story told by a scholar about his own life. When he was a young student, a great wali (saint) of that time visited their annual gathering. The scholar was assigned to show the wali around the different departments and sections. After seeing everything, the wali asked: "Now show me your house."

The scholar was embarrassed. His house was nothing — just a single small room attached to the teaching center, furnished with only a charpai (bed) and a broken table and chair. He worried about how so many people would fit. But as they approached, the wali sent everyone else back, saying he would come alone. The scholar's institution sent word that food was ready, but the wali said he would come later — he wanted to sit in this small room first.

Sitting on the charpai, the wali asked: "You're the same boy from before, with the syllabus book, aren't you?" The scholar was stunned — they had met only once, years ago, when he was a young student. The wali then said: "Today I want to give you a great gift. Do you want a beautiful, big house? Do you want a car? Do you want to go for Umrah?" The scholar, overwhelmed, said yes to all. The wali gave him a specific dua: "Allahumma salli ala Muhammad wa aali Muhammad kamā salli wa barakta ala Ibrahima wa aali Ibrahim fil aalameen innaka hameedun majeed."

The scholar began reading this dua regularly. Within a year, Allah opened every door — he received a large, beautiful house, a car, and the opportunity to perform Umrah. The wali's words proved true: when the dua is made with sincerity and the Prophet's name is invoked, no request is too big for Allah.

♦ 19. 3 Lakh Durood e Rahmat Purified His Halal Income ♦

A brother who is a member of a WhatsApp durood group shares his story. He began with Durood e Qurb e Mustafa but later shifted entirely to Durood e Rahmat — "Sallallahu ala Muhammad" — reading at least 100 times daily. His count has now crossed three lakh (300,000).

The most significant change he witnessed was in his livelihood. He works in a government department where commissions were routinely taken — a practice that was mashakoor (doubtful, not clearly halal). For years, this was part of his income. But as his durood count grew past three lakh, something shifted inside him. He simply stopped taking the commissions. He walked away from the extra income and now survives on his salary alone — which is not particularly high.

He says he is deeply content. Allah has granted him inner peace and the conviction that halal risk, even if less in amount, carries barakah that haram or doubtful income never can. He trusts that Allah will increase his provision through His mercy. He also speaks about the toxic politics at his workplace — backbiting, gossip, office maneuvering — and how he is now actively trying to free himself from all of it. Durood, he says, has not just changed his income; it has changed his entire character and the way he lives.

♦ 20. A 27-Year-Old Woman's Durood Miracles ♦

A 27-year-old woman shares how "Sallallahu ala Muhammad" completely transformed her life. Before durood, she had never kept a single Ramadan fast in her entire life — not one. She had no connection to the mosque, to prayer, or to any religious practice.

Then someone advised her to start reading "Sallallahu ala Muhammad." She began, and the changes were immediate and dramatic. In Ramadan 2021, she kept every single fast without missing a single one — something she had never done in 27 years. She describes an overwhelming karam (generosity) from Allah that descended upon her through this simple, short durood.

Her enemies became her friends. Her father, who had been very ill, recovered. Impossible tasks became possible. Desires she had long given up on were fulfilled. She says she saw miracles in the short durood that she never expected — all from just five words: "Sallallahu ala Muhammad."

She explains the power behind it: when you say these words once, seventy rahmat (mercies) descend upon you from Allah. When Allah's mercy is raining down upon someone, what problem can remain? What illness can stay? What enemy can harm? She urges everyone to start — even if it's just this short, easy durood — and watch how life begins to change.

♦ 21. A Sister From a Non-Religious Family Found Durood ♦

A sister from a completely non-religious family shares her journey. In 2018, her life was immersed in sin — she watched TV dramas, listened to songs, and had no concept of prayer, fasting, or deen. Her family environment had no religious influence whatsoever. She was deeply troubled, and every night before sleep, she was consumed by a terrifying feeling that she would die in her sleep — that the angel of death was coming for her. She lived in constant fear.

Then she came across a video that said whoever reads one thousand durood daily would be shown their place in Jannah before sleeping. Given her nightly terror of death, this hit her hard. She started reading one thousand durood every day. The fear of death gradually disappeared, replaced by a deep sukoon (peace). The durood became her anchor.

What makes her story remarkable is that she had no one to guide her. Her family was not religious, so she turned to Allah and the Prophet (PBUH) directly. Whenever she faced a problem — in marriage, in family, in life — she would ask Allah and the Prophet (PBUH) through durood, and guidance would come: through a video, through a person, through a dream. She describes it as a direct conversation with the Divine.

When her engagement was fixed, her in-laws were initially hostile and against the marriage. Through consistent durood, their hearts completely turned — they accepted her with love, and she was married into a kind, caring family. She had a dream in which she was shown her house in Jannah — a beautiful white house surrounded by lush greenery. She woke up in tears, overwhelmed with gratitude. Her journey, she says, from a life of sin and fear to one of peace and barakah — all began with a single durood.

♦ 22. 7,000 Astaghfar Made Her Thoughts Become Reality ♦

A sister shares her experience after starting the practice of 7,000 Astaghfirullah daily. She had already been reading durood Sharif consistently for two years, but after adding astaghfar to her routine, the changes were immediate and extraordinary. She began having vivid, special dreams in which she was given importance and made to feel deeply special — as if she possessed a superpower. Through these dreams, she received guidance and direction for her life.

The most remarkable change was that whatever she thought about began manifesting in front of her. If a thought entered her mind, the corresponding event would follow. She shares a specific incident: one day while doing household chores, she thought about her deceased grandmother, wondering why she hadn't appeared in her dreams for many days. That very afternoon, she fell asleep and dreamt of her grandmother sitting on a charpai, wearing a new suit, looking radiant and well. Her entire family was present in the dream. They embraced her grandmother, weeping with joy at being reunited after so long. Then her grandfather appeared too, looking well, and told them: "Be patient, those who are alive must remain patient."

She says that since starting 7,000 astaghfar daily, Allah has shown such barakah that her inner thoughts and outer reality have become one. Whatever she设想, comes to pass. She urges everyone to take up the practice — not just for the dreams, but for the profound connection it creates with Allah.

♦ 23. Durood Lifted Her From Mental Disturbance to Peace ♦

A sister shares how durood sharif completely transformed her life. She was married into a financially well-off family, but her husband was a deeply irresponsible man who showed no interest in work or family responsibilities. Her mother-in-law's attitude was terrible — she would taunt them constantly, saying things like "You husband and wife are useless, you're a burden on us." The sister was mentally disturbed, living in a state of anxiety and depression.

One day, while watching a YouTube video about the blessings of durood sharif, a desire to read durood was born in her heart. She began reading 100 Durood e Ibrahim daily. But because of her mental state, she couldn't be consistent — some days she read, some days she couldn't. When she tried to sit and read, strange and distracting thoughts would flood her mind, making it impossible to focus. Eventually, she gave up.

Some time later, she came across another video about Durood e Rahmat — "Sallallahu ala Muhammad." Because it was short and easy, she decided to try. She started reading it during the day and Durood e Ibrahim at night. The short form allowed her to read 3,000 to 5,000 durood daily with ease. Slowly, her mental state began to improve. The disturbing thoughts faded. The anxiety lessened. Her life, which had been clouded by depression and family toxicity, began to brighten.

She says durood didn't change her circumstances — her husband is still the same, her mother-in-law still taunts — but it changed her. She found inner peace, mental clarity, and a strength she never knew she had. She now reads both Durood e Rahmat and Durood e Ibrahim daily, and urges every woman going through hardship to turn to durood, because it doesn't just change your life — it changes you.

♦ 24. 1,000 Durood e Rahmat Opened the Door of Tahajjud ♦

A man from Kashmir shares how Durood e Rahmat gave him the gift of Tahajjud. He was already a devoted Muslim — praying all five daily prayers with punctuality, reading Quran regularly, and maintaining consistency in his durood and nawafil. But despite his devotion, one thing eluded him: Tahajjud. He would try to sleep early, set intentions, but his eyes simply would not open in the night. He had tried everything, but the gift of Tahajjud remained beyond his reach.

One day, he heard about the blessings of Durood e Rahmat — "Sallallahu ala Muhammad" — and decided to try something different. He began reading 1,000 Durood e Rahmat daily, with a specific intention: "Ya Allah, through the wasila of this durood, grant me the ability to wake up for Tahajjud and perform it with punctuality." He read with full conviction, crying before Allah, begging through the medium of the Prophet's blessed name.

Within just a few days, the impossible happened. He found himself waking up naturally for Tahajjud — not once, not twice, but consistently. His eyes would open at the right time, and he would perform his Tahajjud with khushu and devotion, exactly as he had always desired. He says it happened so effortlessly, so naturally, that it felt like Allah had simply opened a door that had been locked all along.

He describes the feeling of standing in Tahajjud after years of longing — the tears that flow, the connection with Allah, the peace that fills the heart. He says Durood e Rahmat didn't just give him Tahajjud; it gave him a direct, personal connection with Allah that he had been seeking his entire life. He urges everyone to read at least 1,000 Durood e Rahmat daily with a sincere intention, and watch how Allah opens doors they never thought possible.

♦ 25. The Story of Sheikh Wajih al-Rahman and His 70,000 Durood ♦

The speaker recounts the extraordinary story of Sheikh Wajih al-Rahman, an elderly scholar from the Abbasid period who served as Imam of the Prophet's Mosque in Madinah. The Sheikh was the Imam of Hadith and Quran, known for his beautiful recitation. People from Madinah and all the surrounding villages would come to hear his Jummah Khutbah — his voice was so powerful he never needed a microphone.

What made the Sheikh truly remarkable was his secret practice: he would read Durood e Lahuti — "Allahumma salli ala Muhammad" — 70,000 times every single day, both day and night. No one knew about this except a few close companions. The speaker says he witnessed the Sheikh's countless karamat (miracles) with his own eyes.

One incident stands out. A man came to Masjid Nabawi to pray after rain. The mosque's floor was made of mud bricks, and the courtyard had become slippery. The man fell and broke his hip bone. The sound of the crack was heard by many. Everyone tried to help him up, but they couldn't — he was too heavy, and every attempt caused him more pain. Blood began to spread across the floor.

Then Sheikh Wajih al-Rahman came out of his room. The speaker saw his lips moving in silent prayer. He walked toward the injured man, blew on him gently, and said: "By Allah's command, get up." Instantly, the man stood up — completely healed, walking as if nothing had happened. The blood remained on the floor as witness, but the man was whole.

The Sheikh's miracles were not limited to healing. The speaker describes how the Sheikh would receive spiritual visitors, how his knowledge would come alive in ways that left scholars speechless, and how his connection with the Prophet (PBUH) was so strong that he would receive direct guidance. All of this, the speaker says, was the barakah of 70,000 durood daily — a practice that transformed an ordinary man into a vessel of divine miracles.

♦ 26. The Secret of 5,000 Durood: A Dream of the Prophet ﷺ ♦

The speaker shares a deeply moving personal dream. He found himself in the blessed court of the Prophet Muhammad ﷺ. They looked at each other and were both filled with joy. The Prophet asked him: "How much durood do you read?" He replied: "More than 5,000." The Prophet was visibly pleased — he placed his blessed hand on the speaker's hand, just as a close friend would, and smiled with deep happiness.

But the speaker couldn't understand why the Prophet was so pleased with this specific number. Why did 5,000 matter so much? He woke up puzzled, carrying the question in his heart.

Then one day, the answer came to him like an arrow flying from the front. He realized: the minimum attendance required to be present in the Prophet's ﷺ spiritual gathering — his ruhani majlis — is 5,000 durood. Below that, you're not counted among the regular attendees. At 5,000 and above, you are considered present in the Prophet's court, and the Prophet ﷺ is aware of you, remembers you, and prays for you.

He then describes another dream. He saw the Prophet ﷺ in a gathering, wearing a black cloak. The speaker felt an overwhelming love and longing. He wanted to call out, to say something, but the words wouldn't come. Then the Prophet looked at him and smiled, and the speaker felt a wave of peace wash over him.

He explains the profound meaning behind this: when you read durood, you are sending salawat upon the Prophet ﷺ. And when you send salawat, the Prophet ﷺ remembers you in return. He says: "You think of him, and he thinks of you. You remember him, and he remembers you. You send him a gift of durood, and he sends you a gift of dua." This is the secret of the connection — it is mutual, it is real, and it begins the moment you read your first durood with sincerity. He urges everyone to reach at least 5,000 daily, so they may count among those who are present in the Prophet's ﷺ blessed gathering.

♦ 27. A Government Teacher and Her Lakh Daily ♦

A government teacher from a village near Attock lives alone and reads one lakh durood every day. Her journey began when she lost her husband — she turned to durood for comfort and never stopped. She reads during her first two teaching periods when her class is empty, and students in the third period rush to finish their work so they can read durood too. Children as young as third and fourth grade ask her, "Teacher, can we read durood now?" She writes each child's count on a page and tells them to reach one crore. Her daily routine is extraordinary — she sits and completes a crore, then begins another. She barely sleeps. The speaker, who knows her personally, says her face radiates such noor that people are drawn to her. She has inspired hundreds of students and adults alike, simply by living the example.

♦ 28. Ujala from Multan: A Divorced Woman Reborn ♦

Ujala from Multan was married at a young age and divorced within two years — without any reason. Her life collapsed overnight. She fell into deep depression and was bedridden for months. Her mother cried constantly. Ujala tried reading durood in large quantities without proper guidance, which only worsened her condition — her health deteriorated, and she became even more hopeless. Then she discovered the durood networking group and began reading properly, with sincerity and patience. Slowly, her life transformed. She remarried — this time to a loving, religious husband. She became a government teacher. Her mother, who had been sick from worry, recovered completely. Ujala says durood gave her not just a new life, but a new identity. She now reads 25,000 daily and dreams of reaching one crore. "I was dead," she says. "Durood brought me back to life."

♦ 29. Doctor Fouzia: From Grief to Gold ♦

Dr. Fouzia's story begins with her mother's death in 1996. She was a medical student at the time, and the loss shattered her. She had no attachment to Quran, namaz, or durood. After her mother passed, she felt the world had ended. But then she remembered her mother's beautiful Friday routine — after Fajr, she would bathe all the children, feed them breakfast, do all the housework, then put on a white or new clothes, apply perfume, light incense, and sit on a special bed with a pile of dates, reading durood for hours. Young Fouzia would watch her mother's pink, glowing face and think it looked like a hoor of Jannah. That memory — that image of her mother in Jannah — became the seed. Years later, when Fouzia finally began reading durood herself, she saw a dream: the sky was filled with the words "Assalatu Wassalamu Alayka Ya Rasulallah." She woke up transformed. Today, she reads 25,000 daily and has made it her life's mission to spread durood to others.

♦ 30. The Langar of Attock: Miracles in a Village ♦

In a village called Malwa near Attock, there is a langar (free kitchen) that has been running for years — without any visible income source. Every morning, the caretakers place dough and cooking supplies outside, recite Durood-e-Barani loudly, blow upon the food, and leave. When the cooks arrive, they follow strict rules: they must not open the cooking pot's lid, they must cover it with a cloth, and they must serve without looking inside. Yet the food that comes out is enough to feed hundreds. People eat to fullness, yet the pot never empties. The cooks say they have seen this miracle with their own eyes — a little dough becomes enough for many people. There is always more food than anyone needs. They say: "We have seen Allah's miracle before our own eyes." This langar runs purely on the barakah of durood.

♦ 31. One Crore in Fifteen Months ♦

A woman who asks to remain anonymous began reading durood in 2021. Before that, she read 100-200 daily and thought that was enough. But when she made a proper niyyah and began a dedicated practice, she completed one crore in just fifteen months — reading 30,000 daily alongside Durood-e-Ibrahim (which she counts on a counter while feeding her small daughter). She saw a dream on her wedding day: the sky was filled with the words "Assalatu Wassalamu Alayka Ya Rasulallah." She was reading "Seerat un-Nabi" at the time. She says: "Before durood, my namaz had no kaifiyat — I didn't even know what I was reciting. After durood, my entire namaz changed. I developed love for Sunnah practices I never cared about before." Her husband, once not particularly religious, became devout. Her mother-in-law, who never prayed, began praying. Her sister-in-law, a non-practicing doctor, started praying and reading durood. "Durood didn't just change me," she says. "It changed everyone around me."

♦ 32. 1.25 Lakh and a Flat from Allah ♦

A woman was living in a rented flat with her family, struggling to pay rent. Every month began with hope and ended with debt. She made a niyyah: "Allah, until I complete 1.25 lakh Durood-e-Ibrahim, provide me with my own flat." She began reading, and as she progressed through the count, things started falling into place — money appeared from unexpected sources, obstacles cleared, and doors opened. Before she even finished the 1.25 lakh, Allah granted her a flat. She says: "I made a deal with Allah, and He honored it." Another woman in the same video was trapped under a sihr (magic spell) for years. She made the same niyyah — 1.25 lakh Durood-e-Ibrahim. As she read, the spell weakened, her health returned, and her life was restored. "Make the niyyah," she says. "Allah will not let you finish without answering."

♦ 33. Marriage Gift: Durood-e-Ibrahim Opens Every Door ♦

A woman was struggling to get married — she liked someone at her workplace, but her family refused. The man's own brother opposed the match out of jealousy, a sickness that has become common: siblings who cannot stand to see each other succeed. The woman was told to read Durood-e-Ibrahim 1,000 times daily with the niyyah that the marriage be made easy. She was already regular in namaz and tahajjud. She began the amal. Within days, her family's hearts softened. The brother who had been blocking the match suddenly changed his mind. The marriage was arranged without any further resistance. The speaker says this is the power of Durood-e-Ibrahim — the Prophet ﷺ chose it himself and taught it to the Sahaba. When you read it with sincerity, it doesn't just open doors — it removes the locks.

♦ 34. The Mother Whose Son Went to Drugs ♦

A mother's son fell into drugs and bad company. He stopped working, stopped coming home at night, and began stealing from the family and neighbors. People from the neighborhood came to complain. His siblings distanced themselves. His father was indifferent. The mother was alone in her suffering. She stopped praying for her other children — her entire du'a became one sentence: "Allah, make this boy Your slave. Free him from sin. Break this addiction." She tried hospitals multiple times. Each time, he would recover briefly, then relapse. Then she began reading Durood-e-Mehrab and making nazr. Slowly, her du'a was accepted. Her son returned home. He left the drugs. He began working again. The neighbors stopped complaining. The mother says: "I saw with my own eyes that durood reaches where du'a cannot."

♦ 35. Terror to Transformation ♦

A woman describes her journey as strange and difficult. When she began reading durood, her dreams became terrifying — she would see herself on a staircase covered with snakes and lizards, unable to go down. She would dream of being chased through forests by wild animals. The dreams were so vivid she would wake up in fear. People told her these were spiritual blockages being removed. But the real test was in her waking life — every small task became a battle. If she needed to leave the house, obstacles multiplied until she wanted to give up. But she kept reading. Slowly, her heart began to change. The love of the world that had gripped her loosened. She describes seeing things that opened her eyes to the spiritual world — things she cannot fully explain. Her life became easier, her du'as were answered faster, and the constant resistance she faced dissolved. She says: "I saw with my own eyes the heights that durood can take you to. But first, it breaks you — and then it rebuilds you."

♦ 36. Durood as Hadiya: A Gift That Changed Everything ♦

A woman was suffering because her in-laws would not let her visit her family. Her husband was complicit. She was depressed and withdrawn. She had a niyyah of one crore durood and was reading Durood-e-Rahmat, reaching 25,000 daily. A sister in the group advised her to make nazr of one photo per person — for each person causing her difficulty, she would read one Durood-e-Pak and gift it to them, then make du'a that Allah make things easy and put love in their hearts. She did this for 40 days. Within one week, her mother-in-law's behavior changed dramatically. Within days, the same mother-in-law who had forbidden her from visiting called her and said: "It's been too long since you saw your mother. Call your brother tomorrow at 3 and go visit for a few days." The woman was stunned. The same woman who had locked her away was now insisting she go. She says: "I made durood my hadiya — my gift — to the very people who were hurting me. And Allah changed their hearts."

♦ 37. Lost Laptop: The Barakah of 1,000 Durood ♦

A woman's sister lost her laptop and important documents at an airport during a flight delay. By the time she realized, she was already halfway home — too far to go back. She called her sister in desperation. The sister, who was already reading Durood-e-Akhzari nightly (waiting for the time of 1,000 durood), immediately began reading and making du'a. She told her sister to read too. That night, she prayed: "Ya Allah, this is impossible — an airport lost and found returning our things? But if You do it, it will be a miracle, and I will know my du'a has been accepted." The next morning, her uncle arrived from a distant city and said he had received a phone call. Someone at the airport had found the bag — and the address on the documents matched exactly. The bag was returned, everything intact. She says: "Durood-e-Akhzari made the impossible possible."

♦ 38. Sheikh Anis: The Poor Man Who Fed a Kingdom ♦

Sheikh Anis Naqshbandi tells his own story. He is a poor man with one son and two daughters. His wife passed away years ago. He sells rice and haleem from a cart — whatever he earns each day is all he has. His daughters are beautiful, educated in deen, and never step outside without hijab. But their beauty became a source of pain — local boys harassed them, knowing their father was too poor and weak to fight back. He watched helplessly as his daughters suffered. Then he began reading durood with sincerity, and his entire life shifted. He doesn't give specific details of what changed, but says: "Durood reached where I could not. It protected what I could not protect. It opened doors I didn't know existed." He says his experience is for anyone who feels too weak, too poor, too helpless — durood is the weapon of the powerless.
